You Made the Right Call

Thank you for downloading this no-fluff report on how to get turbo traffic to your website. This will be short and sweet.

A quick intro about me: my name is Daniel Silvestre and I am a full-time writer. This is what I do all day, every day (yep, I do enjoy working on weekends as well!). I've been a ghostwriter for a couple of years now, ghostwriting articles, ebooks, sales pages, newsletters and whatnot. I simply love what I do and wouldn't want it any other way. I have ghostwritten more than 1000 blog posts for more than 100 clients. I've decided to share my small successes with others.

I have tried and tested different strategies to bring traffic to my blogs and today I'll share traffic sources that have brought traffic FAST and with great results in terms of building my list (so it's super laser targeted traffic we are talking about).

These methods have bought me a decent chunk of traffic to a brand new blog on a very specific niche. So this tells you that it's quite feasible using these methods alone to bring traffic AND leads to your blog, old or new.

Remember, however, that is one thing to bring traffic but quite another to convert it to subscribers and sales, for which you need to have a landing page, to gather subscribers you can sell to, linked up with an auto responder. Mail your list often and grow a relationship with them and you will be golden.

Finally: if there is anything I can help you with please do not hesitate to contact me shooting an email to dsilvestre7 at Gmail dot com. Here's what I would love to hear from you about:

- How these strategies worked for you, results you achieved.
Share your success;
- Discussing other traffic sources that have worked well for you;
- Content you need to have created by a professional writer.

Let's get in touch!

To Your Traffic Success,

Dan

Everyone Likes Winning

---

I love winning stuff, whether it's a simple Teddy Bear by playing darts at a local fair or a free shampoo at the supermarket. Truth is: everybody (sometimes secretly) does.

However it tastes even better when it comes from your efforts, like winning a sports final and raising the cup with your team or a diploma that you get by winning that short stories competition (I still have those, I always say I was born with a pen in my small fingers).

Online it's no different really.

Nevertheless I haven't encountered many people who are doing this online and it baffles me every day how they can be missing on such a simple strategy that reaps so many benefits with so little work on their part.

And the best part of this technique is that not only does it go viral but you get to become an instant authority in that specific niche.

Crazy, right?

Now most of you have probably heard about banner advertisement and how it can send a massive amount of traffic to your website throughout the time, especially if your banner is a) very well designed, b) has great placement in a website and especially c) it's on a authority website.

But here are the problems with that:

- a) It can cost you a lot of money to get the design right and see which one convert best
- b) The best placement might be already gone and you're stuck with lousy placement
- c) Money! You might have to spend quite a hefty sum to get your into an authority site (and the price goes up for the best placement and great design, obviously)

And worst of all: the website owner can deny your ad just because you don't have an authority website yourself.

Man, banner ads can be tricky.

But what if I told you there's a secret door to get your banner for absolutely nothing in a lot of authority websites while almost never be denied placement?

Are you getting as excited as I am?

Good, you should, because what I am about to reveal is a simple goldmine when it comes to getting laser targeted traffic from major authority websites...

You've probably guessed it by now, haven't you?

Yep, that's right; you are going to give them an award. Remember how everyone likes winning? Good. You are going to tell them that they have won.

But Dan wait a sec here... won what?

Well young Padawan, whatever you want really.

One strategy I use is compiling lists of the top websites/blogs of a specific niche or area.

Let's look at the specific niche of freelance writing where we turn into a website called The Write Life (man I wish I had come up with that name, right?).

Now scroll down a little bit and notice this:

Get Smart About Pitching Your Book with the One Page Book Proposal

September 14, 2015 By Jennie Nash 4 Comments

Do you know how to pitch your book to agents and publishers? Start with this short proposal. Read more.

How to Write About Anything: 5 Steps for Researching a New Topic

If you happen to click that banner you are directly to a post called “The 100 Best Websites for Writers in 2015”, where you will see, by category, their choice for the best websites.

So far so good?

Now here’s the kicker: when you click those websites you’ll notice some of them have listed that specific banner in their sidebar and if you click on it you’ll be redirected to – guess what – The Write Life post with the full list.

Aliventures is using it (although the 2014 banner):

- Step #1: Write a book; finish it.
- Step #2: Send it to agents; get an agent.
- Step #3: Agent secures publishing deal; writer lives happily ever after.

As a 14 year old (and indeed as a 20 year old), that's what I thought would happen. That was the dream.

It may well have been your dream too, or perhaps still is.

My first novel floundered at Step #1; my second went out to agents and failed to secure more than momentary interest.

After a hastily abandoned attempt at a third novel, my fourth, Lycopodium, was the first I was truly proud of. And I decided not to go down that well-trodden path again.

[\[click to continue...\]](#)

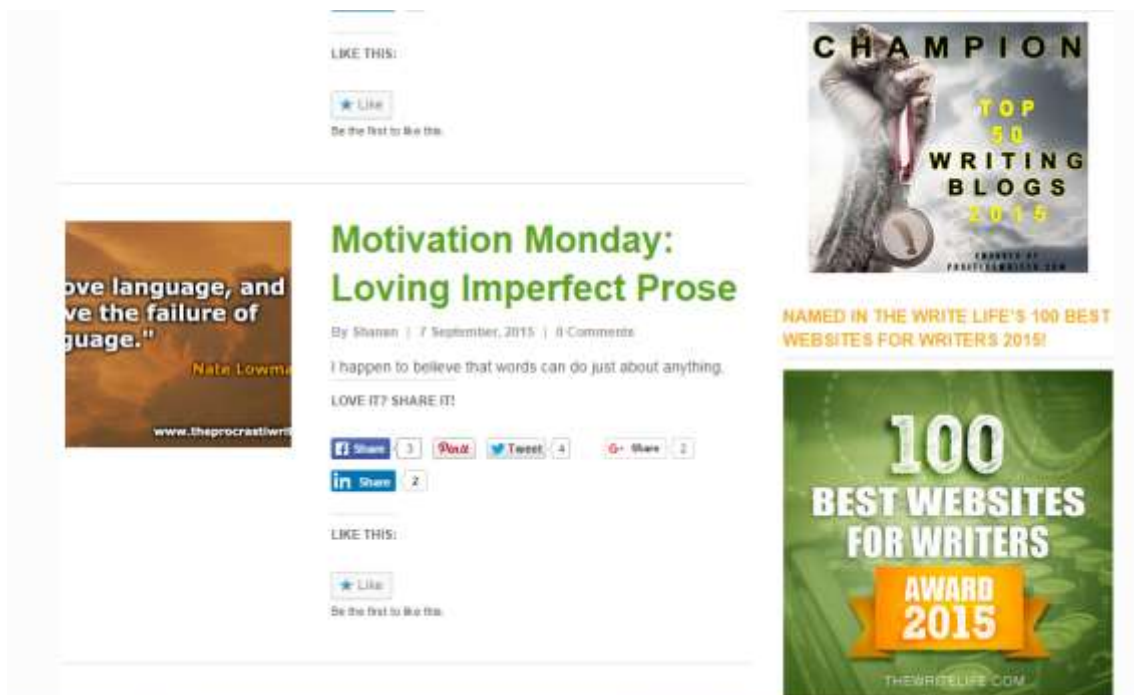

AS SEEN ON

As is Jami Gold in his website:

And The Procrastewriter too (it even has two awards there):

And many, many others.

It's a given that not all of these websites list that specific award in their sidebar – last time I checked it was about 25% of them – but you will be reaching out to a lot of influencers about something you want to do for them AND link to A LOT of top blogs/websites, which is great for building organic out links.

As for getting the awards done, you have three choices here:

1. Design them yourself if you think you're good with design
2. Outsource it to a professional in freelancing websites
3. Create one for free using this fantastic tool (it won't give you state of the art design but it's pretty decent)

So let's recap this simple yet very effective method:

1. Decide on an award you want to give out
2. Compile a list of blogs and get their contacts, tell them their website was selected a winner (if you want ask them for a small snippet about their website – not necessary but makes your writing work a lot easier)
3. Write a “Top XX in YY” blog post linking to those websites
4. Send them the award linking to your award blog post
5. BOOM: traffic!

So that method alone will generate a lot of targeted traffic to your website the generous way. That hack could very well be an entire WSO and people would love it.

I want you to adore me ,) So let's move on!

Sharing Is Caring

I don't think there was ever a time when being a reporter was so hard as nowadays. There is so much information going around and so fast that is just ridiculously difficult to keep up with everything: getting facts, finding the right people, writing the right words, conversions on how much of an article people read, online media, offline media, setting up larger projects, working with teams, travelling to get inside scoops... And I could go on and on and on about this.

Thankfully I do not have to.

Truth is: I like reporters. They work in the same niche as I do (writing) and to be honest I wouldn't like to be in their position.

One could say I sympathize with them. And I would like to help them out.

And that's exactly what we will be doing.

We will be "Helping a Reporter Out" (in short: HARO).

Here's how HARO describes itself:

"From The New York Times, to ABC News, to HuffingtonPost.com and everyone in between, nearly 30,000 members of the media have quoted HARO sources in their stories. Everyone's an expert at something. Sharing your expertise may land you that big media opportunity you've been looking for."

Go over to their website and sign up with them.

HARO will bring you extra publicity for FREE! Make sure to be very specific when signing up about your area of expertise and how you can contribute. Remember that reporters have a very limited time on their hands and use this website to gather more information about your niche.

Ok great that we took that out of the way...

Here are their categories:

A screenshot of the HARO Preferences form. At the top, it says "HARO PREFERENCES". Below that, a message states: "You're now subscribed to the Master HARO. (Don't worry, you can unsubscribe to any list any time you like.) If you work in a specific industry, or are REALLY an expert about something specific, sign up to receive THOSE queries even quicker, by checking off specific lists below that you'd like to join." There are two columns of checkboxes. The left column includes: Master HARO (checked), High Tech, Energy and Green Tech (with an info icon), Sports (with an info icon), Public Policy and Government (with an info icon), General, and Travel. The right column includes: Business and Finance, Biotech and Healthcare (with an info icon), Lifestyle and Fitness, Entertainment and Media (with an info icon), Education (with an info icon), Giftbag, and UK.

HARO PREFERENCES
You're now subscribed to the Master HARO. (Don't worry, you can unsubscribe to any list any time you like.) If you work in a specific industry, or are REALLY an expert about something specific, sign up to receive THOSE queries even quicker, by checking off specific lists below that you'd like to join.
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Master HARO	<input type="checkbox"/> Business and Finance
<input type="checkbox"/> High Tech	<input type="checkbox"/> Biotech and Healthcare i
<input type="checkbox"/> Energy and Green Tech i	<input type="checkbox"/> Lifestyle and Fitness
<input type="checkbox"/> Sports i	<input type="checkbox"/> Entertainment and Media i
<input type="checkbox"/> Public Policy and Government i	<input type="checkbox"/> Education i
<input type="checkbox"/> General	<input type="checkbox"/> Giftbag
<input type="checkbox"/> Travel	<input type="checkbox"/> UK

Now, after confirming your sign up HARO will send you emails about three times a day with info from the reporters and what they are looking for. Expect them to be super specific so make sure you only hit reply if you can contribute with meaningful information (if you do not send relevant information they can blacklist you and you won't be able to use this hack again). Wait for the perfect fit to jump in.

After helping a reporter out you will get links from his/her story once it's published. This is quite awesome since you are going to be recognized as an expert in that particular niche AND you are getting a great link from an established website.

Not convinced yet?

All right, what about this: well-established bloggers also use the HARO service and you will, once again, get valuable links and traffic back to your website for your efforts!

HARO has been growing a lot in the past few months so there will be some competition but as long as you are an expert in a particular niche you should be able to get into a story soon enough. It takes time to get that first story but once you get your word out there it will be much easier to get the next one, and then the next one.

I hope you've realized by now the powerful source that HARO is.

Moving on then.

As Seen On...

Raise your hand if you have seen any of those symbols (or others similar) below the text “As Seen On” in a website.

Did you touch the sky?

You probably did.

A lot of websites use the credibility of these sources to enhance their own credibility. It’s marketing, pure and simple.

By adding a powerful source using the logo in their website they are perceived as more trustable, professional and knowledgeable.

It’s that simple.

Now I am going to teach you how to do the same exact thing, being featured in a major channel that will bring tons of traffic to your website while also building your credibility.

Ever wanted to be big enough to be featured on the news?

Well, good news (pun intended) is: you don't need to! You just need to be at the right place at the right time.

The right time is right now.

The right place?

CNN!

More specifically: CNN iReport.

This is a website secretly released by CNN a couple of years ago and it's every marketing and authority traffic buff wet dream.

You get to add one of these to your website:

Plus you are getting a powerful backlink from CNN!

So here we go...

iReport is a platform that allows you to write about anything you want. The key though is to make the article appear like a REAL news article and not just a spammy article that you post to GoArticles or Ezines.

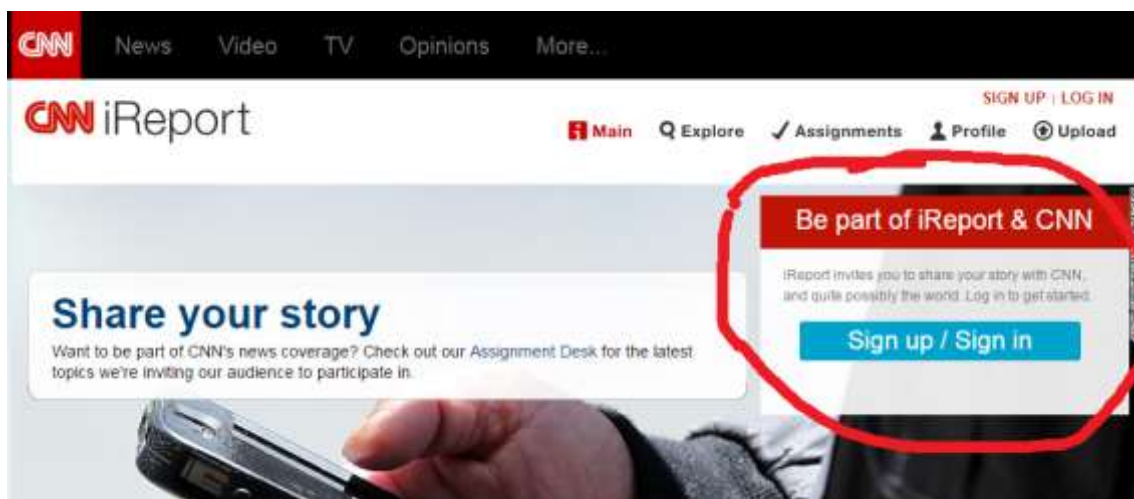

Best of all, this can be done in ANY niche out there.

As you can imagine the headline is crucial here. Don't go with something generic like "How to Lose Weight Fast!" but rather make it look (or read in this case) like a real news headline such as "Overweight Obesity in Midlife Linked to Earlier Onset of Alzheimer's" (disclaimer: this is an actual title, read it here).

PRO TIP: You can easily get some ideas by searching google for "your keyword" + "news"/"headline news" and you will get a couple cool suggestions in the first results.

It's not about stuffing your keyword in there, getting people to buy from you instantly or directing affiliate links. Forget about that for a minute and think about adding value and getting yourself in front of serious traffic (you include your link at the end of the article).

#1. Sign Up for a new account with iReport

#2. Login to your dashboard and click the “Upload” button

#3. Go to the “Choose Assignment” tab and either choose something that is relevant to your niche or “Breaking News”. Remember to give your article a very news-like headline. Don’t rush this!

#4. Write an article about 400-500 words related to your niche. The writing must be impeccable here, make sure you edit and proofread it before clicking go. Include keywords related to your niche in the “Tags” box, increasing your chances to be found.

#5. Include an “Author Bio” at the end of the article with a link (make sure to include “http://www.”, otherwise it won’t work). Add relevant, high-quality images to your article to make it look more professional.

PRO TIP: you don't need to use your real location if you are not truly comfortable with that

#6. Agree to the terms of service and click “Upload”

That's it, you've submitted your article and will start to receive high-quality target traffic from it. Make sure to submit it to social bookmarking websites for even more views. Check IMAutomator, a great tool with a free trial for automating this.

Finally, grab this and add to your website:

Get to Work

And... That's all folks!

I just gave you three SUPER powerful traffic sources that you can now go OUT there and make it happen.

But I can't make it happen for you.

You are the only one that can do that.

So keep this blueprint open to make sure you follow all the steps necessary but by all means TAKE ACTION right now!

That's truly what separates the winners from the losers.

The people that are making an income online and the ones just barely making or - even worse - still looking to make their first dollar online.

Don't become one of those people, I beg you...

Get your face out there, get your website or blog in front of the right people.

GET TO WORK!

All righty then, this is goodbye for me. Feel free to email me at dsilvestre7 at Gmail dot com if you have any questions or want to drop me a line.

Also check my other super product here:

It covers a simple hack that I used to build a targeted list of 538 people in 11 days. It's so stupidly simple even my dog can do it. Best of all: it only takes you 5 minutes to automate it.

Buy me a beer and it's yours!

To Your Traffic Success,

Dan
