A Warm Welcome From Surya Kumar

Hey,

Thanks for purchasing Affiliate Sniper Pro, A step by step system which explains how I am earning over $1,000 bucks everyday by working only 1-2 hours.

This is a Affiliate Sniper Pro, however it is written and narrated by me – Surya Kumar.

This guide was created after we noticed how many “dummies” were making a lot of money. Yet all the smart people were still broke.

We realized that it boiled down to the dummies using super easy and basic techniques which were so simple – all of the smart people like yourself glanced over and didn't pay attention to.

So I dug up some resources, spent a little money on testing and I was able to make over $7000 in 1 week – and I only spent 1-2 hours each day to do it.

Maybe, that's not a lot of money, but its EASY and its passive – NO COMPLAINTS HERE!

As usual, Affiliate Sniper Pro prides itself on creating extremely high quality, low cost products for you to enjoy!

Our principles are easy;

1. Keep integrity and honesty first!
2. Treat all of our customers, clients, and subscribers with care and respect – NO MATTER WHAT!
3. Provide only the best information. And present it in a way that's easy and fun to read.
4. Execute excellence in all we do.

So kick back and enjoy the read, you're in good hands.

Team Affiliate Sniper Pro,

Surya Kumar

Introduction

If you've ever been interested in jumping into affiliate marketing but you found yourself asking a million different questions such as:

- WHAT kind of products should I promote?
- WHERE do I find the best products?
- HOW do I get paid?

Then this special report is exactly what you've been looking for because not only I will show you how to uncover the best, highest paying products in affiliate marketing but you'll uncover some of the most powerful time-saving strategies ever revealed so that you can jumpstart your affiliate marketing career while shortcutting the entire process!

You know for yourself that affiliate marketing is where the real money is. As an affiliate you don't ever have to worry about the cost and time involved in product creation, or dealing with customer support (Amen!). As an affiliate, your only job is to drive targeted traffic to hot, high converting offers that sell like hotcakes, and then sit back and collect the paycheck at the end of each day.

And now is the best time to get started. You see, years ago affiliate marketing while still viable, required a lot more effort than it does today.

With fewer products on the marketplace, a lower number of viable markets, and limited options in terms of how you got paid, what type of offers you were able to promote and even how you were allowed to promote them, setting up campaigns were often incredibly frustrating and time consuming.

And at the end of the day, it wasn't always so rewarding, especially if you weren't even sure how much you earned or when you'd get paid for all of the work involved.

But today, the affiliate marketing arena is entirely different. Not only are you given unlimited options in regards to the type of products you promote, but there is an endless supply of high quality products in every market imaginable that you can feel proud to promote.

Don't forget, in affiliate marketing, your name is all that you have and so the last thing you ever want to do is promote shoddy offers or questionable products. Thankfully, with an ever-growing marketplace that was created with affiliate marketers in mind – and where the entire community is focused on transparency, you will never have to worry about any of that again!

1. The Power of Reviews in Affiliate Marketing

Reviews are said to be the most important component of affiliate marketing. There are some subtle and not-so-subtle reasons for that.

1) People like to feel you're in their "corner".

When an affiliate marketer takes the time to nurture the members of her niche, solve their problems and look out for their interests, each member comes to trust the person who does good things for them – and consistently helps them succeed.

How do you do all these good things?

By finding them exactly the product they need to solve this week's problem or enhance their lives (or even just their hobby). You do this by focusing on their problem, not on the product. Strange as this may sound.

After you've showed them the pros and cons of a product, directing them to your affiliate link should feel as if it's almost an afterthought, or – even better – as helpfully supplying the exact way to do what you've just been talking about.

2) People don't like being "sold" to.

Nobody likes to be manipulated, and that's what the old-school style of aggressive selling amounts to, in most people's minds today. When you've shared a secret method of making money with your reader, it should feel as if you've truly shared a secret method, and helped them in the process.

This level of service is what online readers demand nowadays.

Yes, “in your face” selling still works – but at the cost of your credibility, if your skills aren’t quite at the level of Billy Mays or Anthony Sullivan. You’re seen as the next best thing to a carnival hawker; and while these people do a unique and mesmerizing job and that comment is not meant to judge them, there’s a reason most of them end their days as carnival hawkers, still living on a shoestring; and not living next door to another celebrity or otherwise enjoying their particular dream lifestyle.

But there’s another, far simpler reason to avoid “hard sell” techniques, and it has nothing to do with your customers:

Most affiliate marketers just don’t have the “hard sell” personality. They don’t enjoy manipulating and pushing people into buying. They actually enjoy finding products people rave about. And all of us love a good paycheck – one that allows us to comfortably live the lifestyle we’ve chosen, taking care of people we love. Writing reviews is a perfect way to:

- Recommend products you’ve tried that really work
- Show people how to solve a problem
- Make a connection, and enjoy a relationship with your readers

In fact, Affiliate Sniper Pro embodies this softer sell, service-based method of selling – as well as helping you comfortably maintain your integrity and ethics.

Crystal’s Secret

Years ago, I had an opportunity to watch a friend at work in a “tack” (equestrian supplies) store. This happened on a busy Saturday, and it was a revelation to see how patiently and helpfully she matched customers and their horses with the right saddles and bridles. By patient questioning and listening, she focused on the areas of horsemanship each customer indulged in, taking into account their budget, and what would give them the best performance and comfort for their needs. She repeated the same focused, patient procedure for Western boots, specialty horse feed, hoof products, supplements, riding apparel, hoof picks and English safety-approved helmets, too. No product was too “small potatoes”, if it would help her customer and his horse enjoy a better equine experience.

It was clear that my normally-shy, horse-loving friend, Crystal, was having an absolute blast – but there wasn’t a shred of ego in it. She was not “showing off” her knowledge; all her efforts were 100% customer-focused.

During a rare lull, I couldn't help commenting: "Crystal, I thought you absolutely hated selling. I remember you trying to sell those vacuum cleaners, and quitting in tears, less than a week into it. You swore then you'd never sell anything again – and here you are today, you've made over $6,000 in sales, right before my eyes, in less than a morning. I'm stunned at how well you do it, and how much you seem to enjoy it. You've got those customers avoiding the other two girls, lining up to wait just for you. They're eating out of your hand."

I'll never forget how surprised Crystal looked.

"But this isn't `selling'," she blurted out. "I'm helping them."

And that's how I've approached my own marketing, since, with every customer or client.

(It's a fun way to live!)

But Does It Really Make You More Money?

That is the million-dollar question. But think about it... how many vacuum cleaners would you sell, if you hated every moment knocking on doors? You'd procrastinate, chicken out, and present a miserable, half-hearted sales spiel (just as Crystal did) when someone did finally, grudgingly let you inside.

I also remember vividly that she didn't sell one single vacuum cleaner. That type of approach just didn't gel with her personality – or interests.

You have to have a particular mindset to be an in-your-face, aggressive salesman. Most of us aren't hard-wired that way. And that's the beauty of affiliate sniper pro...

It doesn't matter what your favorite topic is, or whether you like to review products via podcast, presenting yourself on video, or by writing. It doesn't matter whether you're in the business of internet marketing, insurance, electronics or any other specialty niche: Reviewing products your niche will find valuable is a made-to-succeed formula for anyone.

You're dealing with passionate people, when you're dealing with a niche. Help them find exactly what they need, and in their eyes, you're already a celebrity.

Is It a Lot of Work?

Affiliate Sniper Pro is something you can do full-time, or part-time. It doesn't take long to reach authority status, particularly once top marketers or professionals in a niche notice that your reviews bring them sales – and list members notice you always bring them good advice.

In fact, you really can work relatively short hours a day, once you've got your methods down pat, and no longer have to look up how to set up a WordPress blog or how to create an affiliate link redirect.

You can spend as much or as little time you like in promoting and driving traffic to those blogs, too – but you can do it in a way that fits in with your lifestyle and personality preferences.

Here's how to help propel yourself more quickly towards success:

- 1) Follow a “formula” (template), to give your reviews consistency and a distinctive style. (People psychologically love and align themselves to repetitive patterns.) And if you don't have a formula or template – create one, and stick to it for each review.
- 2) Listen to your readers (or your niche market, if you're brand new). Find out which problems haven't yet been solved, and do your best to solve them by finding the right products – and telling them why it's right for their needs.

- 3) Present yourself intelligently. Study top affiliates, and see what little signature tricks or quirks they employ that set them above the “herd”. While all the other would-be review bloggers are buying book after book, all telling them to do the same things, over and over, spend your time studying the super affiliate reviewers and their sites – to see what they do differently.
- 4) Always focus on your readers. This can’t be said too many times. Remember, no one is really interested in your expert opinion, even while they’re wanting you to be that expert. They’re too busy focusing on “Is this going to show me how to do X at last?”
- 5) Don’t be afraid to be unique, and let people know who you are. Both you and your readers will have more fun – and the sales you attract will be less likely to generate refunds, because they’ll be more in line with your market’s real needs.

STEP 1 – Product Selection

WHAT IS AFFILIATE MARKETING?

Affiliate marketing is where a vendor of a product (such as an eBook) rewards an affiliate (you) for selling their product usually by paying the affiliate a percentage of the revenue received as commission for the sale. For example, if you have a blog you could post an affiliate link to an eBook about losing weight written by someone else. Whenever a visitor comes to your website, clicks the affiliate link and purchases that eBook for $20, you receive a percentage of the sale.

One of the most popular digital marketplaces with an affiliate program is Clickbank. It's got a huge range of over 50,000 products and is very straightforward to use. Many of the products also sell for quite high prices, giving you a massive commission per sale. For these reasons we're going to be using Clickbank as our affiliate network. If you're interested you might also want to check out Clicksure, Jvzoo and Clickbetter etc for a different range of products. Jvzoo also have the option to pay via Paypal, whereas Clickbank, Clicksure & Clickbetter does direct bank transfer.

HOW TO CHOOSE A PRODUCT

You've probably watched those so-called super affiliates with envy, haven't you? Don't be embarrassed. Everyone started somewhere, and they all looked on with wide-eyed wonder as a select few individuals seemed to pull money out of thin air.

But is it really that difficult?

No! Honestly, it's not some kind of voodoo magic. Absolutely anyone can pull in the kind of sales super affiliates do. You just need to know the tricks!

Here's the thing... those super affiliates will often tell you to just put up some links online and that the products really "sell themselves". Nope. That's total BS. The fact is, only a very few products sell themselves. The rest need serious help!

Why?

Because most vendors are totally lame. Like, to the max, dude.

They may have the greatest product ever made, and they may have poured their heart and soul, and tons of money, into its development. It may have even taken them months or years!

But they fell so in love with their product that they believed everyone in the world could see its value just like they do, so they slapped up any old sales page and figure it would work.

Then they went out and tried to recruit some affiliates to sell it for them, figuring it would sell itself because it's just such an awesome product.

WRONG!

The prospect can't see the quality of the product until after they've bought it!

So it doesn't matter how good that product is if the sales page doesn't sell it!

Here are a few of the most common factors that cause problems on sales pages:

- Low response sales copy – It just doesn't excite people. It doesn't push any emotional buttons. It's just blah.
- Sloppy page design – This makes people fear the quality of the product and also makes them worry about scams. A professional design puts people at ease.
- A Sales Page leak – If the sales page links to a bunch of stuff that won't make you any money, it's costing you sales! It shouldn't have ads on it. It shouldn't link to Facebook or Twitter. It shouldn't link to the vendor's blog. It should have critical links only!
- Commission hijacking – Sometimes the vendor is just plain shady. He might have multiple payment links on the page, but only one gives you commission. The other gives him the direct sale. (It could be accidental, but it still costs you money!)

So should you promote a sales page with these types of problems?

Yes!

If the product is solid, but the sales page is terrible, you can work with it!

There are some tactics you can use to boost your conversions even on products with terrible sales pages.

You're going to learn how to get killer sales on products with really lackluster sales pages. As long as the product is good so you don't harm your reputation, you're all good!

So now that you understand the basics of what affiliate marketing is, and you've signed up for an account, it's time to choose a product to sell and become an affiliate!

One of the crucial factors in how much money you'll make from this system is your choice of product. It should come as no surprise that some products sell better than others. A product that sells well will net you a nice profit where as a product that doesn't sell will obviously not get you any commissioned sales!

You want to advertise a product that customers actually want and which they genuinely find useful.

So how do you choose a good product?

If you look at the Clickbank marketplace you'll be able to see all of the products available for sale, in a variety of niches (a niche is a specifically focused subset of a market). They have many different statistics which you can use to choose a product.

GRAVITY

Here you can search for products in specific niches if you want to and you can see statistics about each product. You're able to see how much you'll get per sale of a product as well as what royalty percentage you receive in commission. There is another statistic here called gravity which is very important.

Gravity measures how popular a product is with affiliates. It is also loosely related to how well a product sells. It's calculated based on the number of affiliates who have made a sale on that product recently. A high gravity score means that many affiliates have sold that product recently. A low score means that not many affiliates have sold that product recently. It does not take into account the total number of sales for a product, only the number of affiliates that have sold it recently. It is a good indicator of which products are worth promoting from the marketplace and you should generally try to choose a product with high gravity.

You want to choose a product that has high gravity, but not too high. A very high gravity score means that you'll be competing heavily with other affiliates for a piece of the pie since it's so popular. Start off by choosing a product with a gravity score of between 20 and 50. Later on you can experiment with a range of products.

NICHE

Some niches have more paying customers than others and certain niches are generally just more popular. Niches such as health, self help, personal development, weight loss, Xbox, Playstation, Forex, Diablo, and World of Warcraft are always popular. If you don't really mind what niche your product comes from then you can simply use gravity to determine which product is best for you.

I do advise however that you stay away from any products in the "Make Money Online", "Gambling" and "Forex" niche as it is highly saturated (many affiliates in this niche trying to promote the same products) and it will be difficult to compete amongst all the noise.

COMMISSION

You want to choose a product that gives you a high return every time it is sold. The "Average $/sale" will tell you how much you receive for each affiliate sale. Higher numbers are always better! Most products have a good return, so choose whatever you are comfortable with. $15 per sale is a pretty good minimum to aim for.

HOPLINKS

Once you've found a product, the next step is to generate a hoplink. A hoplink (also known as an affiliate link) is a unique web address that customers can visit to go to the sales page of the product that you are promoting.

When a customer buys the product through that page (having been directed there via your hoplink) you will receive commission. The hoplink is the part of the affiliate system which identifies you as the one who drove a customer through to purchase.

To generate a hoplink, find the product that you are promoting on the Clickbank marketplace. If you've found your product you may have to search for it on the Clickbank marketplace. Click the promote button.

STEP 2 - FINDING A GREAT KEYWORD

And THAT will be our targeted keyword – the product name.

There is an awesome advantage when you promote the products from Clickbank – There is literally low competition on Google!

Let me show you an example:

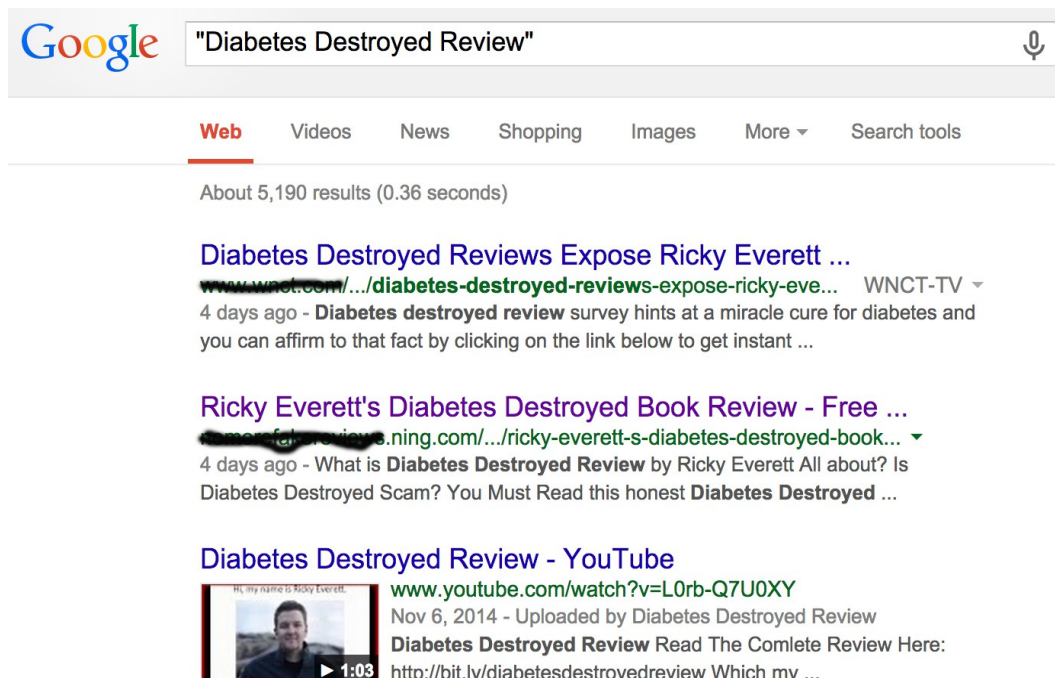

Name of the Product: Diabetes Destroyed

Gravity: 58.44

At the time of writing this report, which is the 2nd of December 2014.

The author of the product is Ricky Everett and his new product is called “Diabetes Destroyed”. (YES, I’m promoting his product launch. It’s just a great example for you to understand the principle of my own way to find great buyer keywords.)

Let me Google this product name and show you how ridiculously low the competition for the product name is right now:

So we have 5k results for “Diabetes Destroyed Review”. If you know only a little thing about internet marketing you should understand, that this is absolutely no competition.

BUT you have a huge advantage now. You can easily establish your website and take over the first places within HOURS.

In fact, you will most probable achieve first page rankings just by creating your website and optimize a few things on that site. Of course I'll go deeper into the subject of search engine optimization later in this course.

The buzz which the "big players" create by sending promotional emails to their immense lists will make the people want to read more about the product and see if it really is worth the money.

Of course the first thing these people will do then is to Google the product name.

However after an in-depth research of the traffic to my affiliate sites in the past years. I've found out that these people not only look for the product name itself, but also for several other keywords in combination with the product name which you definitely need to consider to target as well.

Here are the most searched keywords combined with the product name:

"Product Name" Review

"Product Name" Bonus

"Product Name" Scam

"Product Name" Download

"Product Name" Book

"Product Name" Does it Work

Buy "Product Name"

and much more...

People who search for these terms want to find out more about the specific product. And you should be the first one they will find!

Don't worry I'll show you HOW to be the first one they'll find.

Let's do it now...

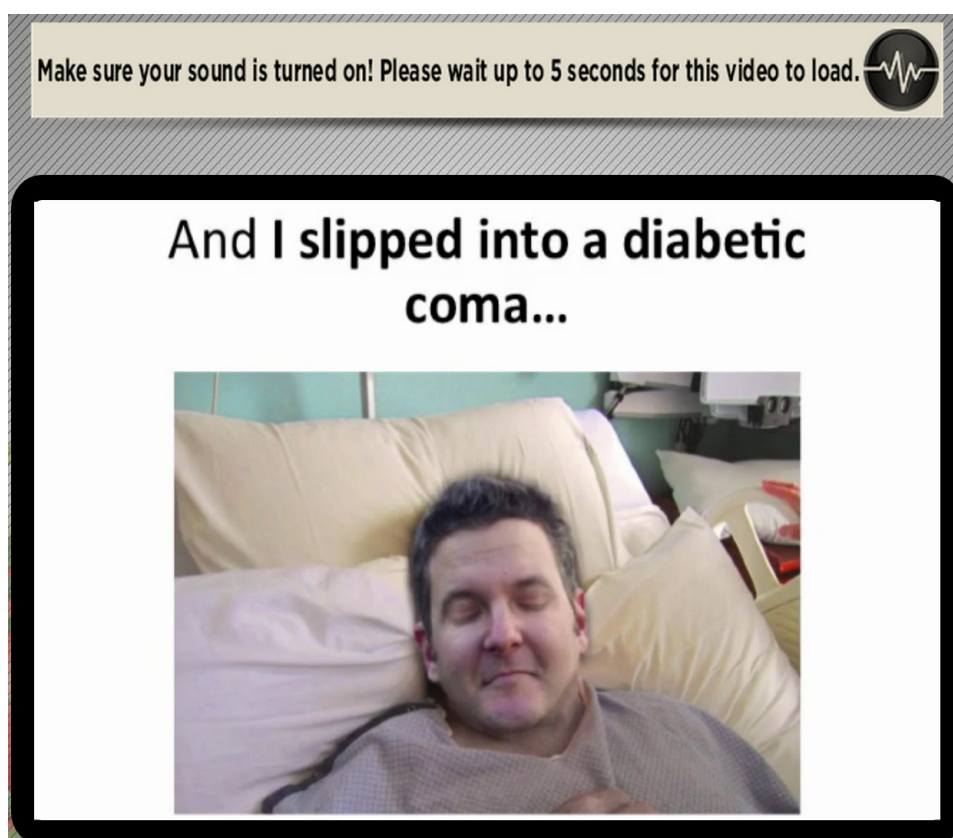

Now that we've got a great product to promote, we need to find a great keyword to go with it! A keyword is a short phrase such as "Diabetes Destroyed" which relates to the product. The keyword is going to be used to generate traffic so that people can find out about the product we are promoting. We want a system where people search for our keyword on Google, find our related review website, and then click the affiliate link contained within. For this reason, your keyword must be related to the product you are promoting.

Many keywords related to your product will already be highly competitive. This means that many other people are also trying to drive traffic to their own websites with the same keyword.

You want to select a keyword which isn't competitive, but still has many people searching for it. This is both an art and a science.

Another way to find a keyword related to your product:

Go to the product's sales page, scroll to the bottom, and look for a link called something like "Affiliates". Most of the clickbank product has the affiliate page but some of them don't have it. If you find, you'll have a whole bunch of resources for helping you promote the product better such as graphics and articles, but you'll also hopefully find some keywords that the vendor has researched for you in advance.

Copy these keywords into a notepad on your computer for now.

STEP 3 – WRITING KILLER REVIEWS

Once you've chosen a product, you need to review it. And that's where you will build your reputation as a blogging and review "authority site".

What's an "authority site?" Usually one that has been around a good while, continually refreshed with fresh content, feedback and reputable backlinks. For a great example, check out Darren Rowse's ProBlogger site. Notice the extraordinary number of comments to his posts and guest posts, as well as the powerful amount of content. These are both hallmarks of Authority sites.

The "been around a good while" is simply something you need to build for – but you can get going right away with continually refreshed ("new") content and a solid reputation.

The best way to do this is to concentrate on only one niche, if you haven't got your list yet, and start going out of your way to help them solve all their problems. It's especially important to start this way if blogging (and review blogging) is new to you – a common mistake would-be review bloggers make is to set up and try to serve too many new blogs at once.

You've heard it all before: "Write as you would to a friend", etc. Be honest in your reviews. Review only products that are of high perceived value to them. Never "fake" or force anything. And follow a plan and review structure.

This doesn't mean you'll be imprisoned by plans and structure. It just means that having an overview and helping readers know what to expect from your reviews works better than haphazardly zipping off posts on everything that comes along. But the main thing to do? Make yourself an authority for one niche – and serve it well.

Let's go over these one by one, in a little more depth...

Your Post Headline

This is one of the most important aspects of creating strong review posts. Think back to all the most intriguing posts you've read. Why did they catch your attention?

Ask a Question – In many cases, you'll find they asked a question. Instead of just "Jean Solar Powered Fountains" as your post heading, change it to something along the lines of "How Long Do Jean Solar Powered Fountains Really Last?"

Number it – People like things they can quantify. "3 Things No One Ever Mentions About Jean Solar Powered Fountains" is far more likely to intrigue curiosity, too.

Diss it – What are people really looking for, when they search for reviews on the net? They're looking to see if anyone has gotten scammed by the product creators. So play along with it – honestly, of course. If there's one feature you didn't like or that didn't work for you, don't be afraid to let people know about it: Doing that will set you far apart from other reviewers who only gush.

Human nature being what it is, "The Single Biggest Drawback of using Jean Solar Powered Fountains" will catch people's attention quicker than "The Single Biggest Advantage..."

Be Controversial – don't do this just for the sake of doing it or being obnoxious, but if there's something relevant to your product review that goes against popular practices, don't be afraid to hint at that in your headline (but make sure you follow through). For example, "The One Time You Shouldn't Use Jean Solar Powered Fountains".

Your Introduction

A good introduction should have a strong "hook" to make the reader want to keep reading. You want a show stopper of a sentence – but don't forget, show stoppers aren't always the most sensational sentence. They are, however, sometimes the most unexpected.

Relate the introduction to your reader. One way is to use "you" words. "Where were you, when internet marketing began online?" But however you start your post, quickly introduce your product – "Search tools have come a long way since the 1990's, and Handy Dandy Niche Tool is about as far from its roots as you could get."

Most of all, however, your introduction needs to quickly summarize for the reader which product you're going to review, what it does, and who makes it. Do this – and then make doubly sure you cover each one of these promises.

Putting Images in your Posts

The latest data suggests strongly that images enhance a blog's readability and attractiveness – but there are some small but important “do's” and “don'ts” you'll want to keep in mind.

Don't make the image huge, and do make it relevant.

In a product review, usually your image would be a screen shot or a graphic provided by the product merchant: However, if you can come up with another relevant image – especially one that's unexpected or unusual (but still really appropriate even to the dimmest of readers) – go for it.

If you can't create visual interest with an image, then do it instead with white space. Break up your text with subheads and bullets. Make it visually easy to scan for information – internet users are turned off by dense chunks of text.

But the most important image to use on your review blog?

Yours.

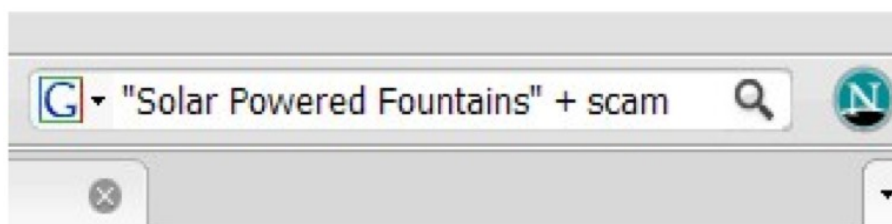

Seriously, people will come to identify you with the good information they're reading.

And make sure your name is on the post, if you've got yourself logged in as “admin”. You can do this either by including a by line, or a resource box for yourself at the beginning or end of the post. (It does improve “branding” of your persona as an authority figure. Otherwise, people often forget who is writing what they're reading!

Pros and Cons

Of course you want to include the pros – but don't be afraid to tackle the “cons” too. To find out what sort of problems people are worried about, with similar products, try to figure out extra terms they might be searching with in Google, and work from that.

A word of warning, however... It's true people will input the word "scam" beside any product they're not sure about, when searching in Google, like so...

But if a product isn't actually scamming someone, resist the temptation to make that word part of your post, just for SEO purposes. If you ignore this suggestion and go for the easy catch, and your reader clicks on your link, and sees instead of an honest scam report, glowing praises of your product, with the careless disclaimer, "Jean solar powered fountains are no scam", you will rapidly and completely lose all credibility in her eyes.

Some other words that people use in searches that you may be able to substitute for "scam"...

- Review
- Flaw
- Drawback
- Problem
- Not worth it
- Rip-Off

Use Wordtracker's free keyword tool and try out your own potential search terms, relating them closely to how you, yourself, feel about your niche tool product. Feel that it's got a flaw? Look to see if there are any searches in the free keyword tool for "niche tool flaw". Feel that it's more of a glitch? Try searching with "niche tool glitch". The best way to figure out what your niche customer would search for is to literally put yourself in his place!

A final word about reporting flaws in a product – always remember flaws can actually be seen as an advantage, to some people.

Example: "It's true that the Handy Dandy Niche Tool is ridiculously easy to use – but this is offset by the fact that it's not highly customizable for those who need a more in-depth statistical analysis. It is definitely the "for dummies" version of a niche finding tool – only simpler!"

Now, if your entire target market is composed of complete newbies, this "flaw" is likely to appeal to them greatly! You weren't being dishonest – but you were positioning your flaw to actually become a benefit.

Of course, if your review blog was called “Advanced Marketing Techniques”, this wouldn't work at all – its simplistic, foolproof operating mode really would be a disadvantage – but if you're running a blog called “Marketing for Newbies”, you're home free.

How it Works

Most products benefit from a brief description of how it works.

This doesn't mean you have to spill all its creator's secrets. It does mean you should focus in on one aspect you're particularly pleased about, or hit what you consider are a number of high points. (“The first benefit that sets Handy Dandy Niche Tool apart from its competitors is...”)

What you are doing is drawing a vivid mental sketch for your reader of the reasons this tool will work for him or her. You really don't need to provide a step-by-step manual, and take all the mystery out of it.

Proof

Anything you can do to provide proof of the benefits you're revealing will go a long way to solidify the impact of your review on your reader. Be very careful, however, about income claims – the new FTC rules are very specific. If you mention how much money you made using a system, not only have you got to be able to prove it with actual documentation, you also need to provide an overview of what the average user can expect – and that representation has to be provable too.

But there are other ways to provide “proof” too. You can do things like:

- Quote the number of sales since its release
- Show screen shots of some wonderful benefit (e.g., a great keyword phrase turning up in your Handy Dandy Niche Tool)
- Quote the complete lack of refunds (providing your figure is accurate)

Conclusion

This is just a short paragraph wrapping up the other end of your “parcel”, and mirroring or echoing your opening statement: For example, tying back to our fictional opening statement: “Where were you when internet marketing started online?”, we might conclude with something like: “You may not have been even aware of the internet when marketing online started, but sales aids with advantages of Handy Dandy Niche Tool can certainly help you get ahead of the pack now.”

Your Call to Action

But you’re not quite done yet. Now comes the most important part of your post – your “Call to Action”.

As marketers, we’re all familiar with this principle – yet it’s surprising how many people actually fail to include it!

What is a call to action? In the particular case of review blogs, its simply making sure your reader knows how to instantly access the product, if he wants to purchase it – in other words, you provide a link. And don’t forget to tell him, even though it may feel like stating the obvious, to go visit it.

If you’ve written a “non-review” post – something just to provide your readers with really valuable information about their niche – you can finish with a different type of call to action: One which positively invites comments.

No matter what you’re posting about – even if it isn’t a review – always include that call to action. (If nothing else, it’s 50% more likely to generate comments – and comments are good!)

Crushing The Competition

All affiliates have competition. If you’re in an extremely competitive niche like internet marketing, you’ll have to stay way ahead of the competition in order to survive.

There are a few ways you can do this, and start bringing in the same types of commission checks the big boys do.

Make sure your blog contains the following:

1. Product reviews and announcements. Be honest in your reviews. Don't just review products for commission!
2. Upcoming products. People want to hear about the latest products right away!
3. Newsletter signups. These are obviously invaluable!
4. Contests. People love contests and will come to your blog just to enter one. They'll also share the contest with others!

Preselling

You always want to presell prospects, because the sales page may not be enough to get them to buy. Additionally, they're already warm because they know you and trust you. (Remember, you've built authority!)

So how should you go about preselling? First, establish the basics:

1. Make sure they know and trust you. If they like you and trust you, they are much more likely to buy.
2. Add value. People will always prefer to buy with a bonus. Who doesn't like free stuff?
3. Trigger reciprocity. If you give someone something for free, they feel indebted to you. This makes them more likely to do what you ask.
4. Presell the product itself. Let them know how good it is and why you think it's so good.

Once the basics are in place, it's time to start preselling in earnest. Even if the vendor's sales page is pretty good, preselling will always boost conversions.

Here are some ways you can presell prospects:

1. Use an email series. Build excitement and anticipation using a series of related articles or emails.
2. Share the product's benefits. Tell them exactly what is in it for them if they buy. What benefits will they see? What problems will it solve? Push those emotional buttons!

3. Use a strong call-to-action. Make sure you tell them exactly what you want them to do. Don't expect them to guess! Tell them, "Go grab your copy right now, because my special bonus is only available for another 24 hours!"

4. Use notification bars. You can overlay a bar over the sales page that will draw attention to a special offer, create a sense of urgency and include a call-to-action. This will increase conversions. (We'll take a closer look at this bar later.)

STEP 4 - Put it all together, publish it to your website

Now here comes the autopilot money making machine! We're going to create a review blog, fill it with information on the product that you're promoting, and place our affiliate link at the end. The idea is that people will read this review, follow the affiliate link to the vendor's page, buy a copy and earn you money.

Sound simple?

It is.

You can review the products you want to promote in the pages of static websites, and in blogs. We're going to concentrate on using a blog format. It's easier than static site reviews by far, because it takes only minutes to add a new post – and you don't have to use HTML or CSS.

Most people prefer WordPress as their content management system (CMS) for blog setup and maintenance – but a word of caution: We are not going to use wordpress.

We are going to use a very secret platform (NING) to make this system work for you auto-pilot. I am sure that no other course/program has ever used this platform in the history.

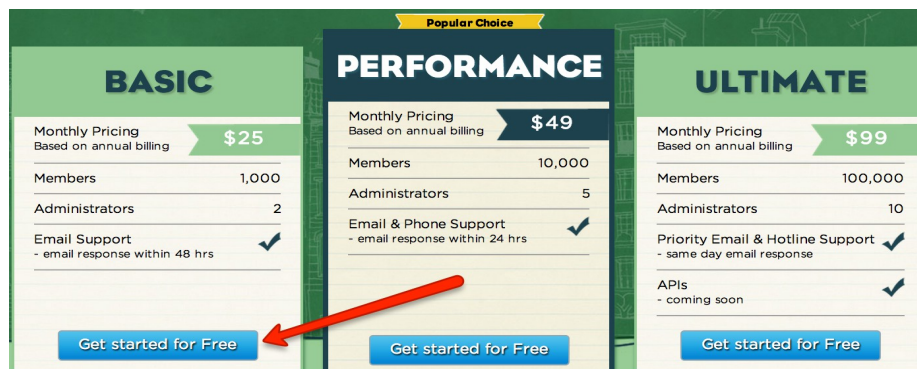

The reason, I am personally using this platform because it ranks very well in Google with very less backlinks effortlessly and you can publish unlimited posts.

Let's do it.

So What about the FTC?

There's been a lot of furor over the "new rules" brought in December 1, 2009, by the FTC. Although, strictly speaking, these rules only apply to the U.S., if you do business with the U.S., it's a wise precaution to respect them. These new rules were meant to put an end to wild claims of 6-figure incomes in an impossible number of days, and curtail or monitor the practice of reviews that were actually 100% paid for, while masquerading as spontaneous, independent reviews.

It's your responsibility to have pages on your blog such as:

- Disclaimers
- Privacy Policy
- Contact information or contact page

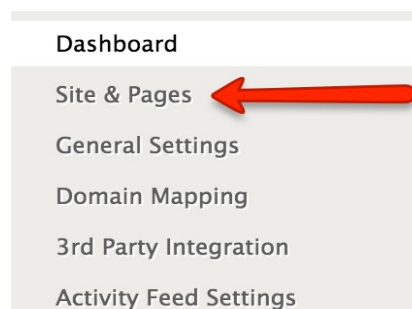

But remember – seeking legal advice, checking out the new FTC rules for yourself and including the necessary disclosures is your responsibility.

We have created a ready-made format of the above 03 required FTC pages and it can be found in the members area on the "FTC pages" folder. Hence, you need to do some necessary changes and can be published it on your website.

Lets set up the FTC pages now..

Click on the "Social Site Manager" that can be found when you log in to your website at the top left.

Click on the "Sites & Pages" to set up the pages.

Now, if you're lucky enough, your vendor may have even given you some articles already to copy and paste, meaning you don't have to do any work at all! Check the same affiliate page that we mentioned before, the one which hopefully also gave you some keywords. If there's an article in there, great! Paste it into your document and format it so that it looks nice.

If you don't have an article written for you then that's no problem. Instead, just grab all the information that you need from the sales page of your product!

Start by copying the headline (the title of the product) and underneath it place the subtext or whatever other eye-catching statements are at the top of the page. If the product uses images for its headlines you might want to use those too.

Next, take the core benefits of the product and list them as bullet points. You can often find a list of summarized benefits somewhere on the sales page. Then use any more information you think might be interesting to finish creating an exciting article about your product. Your document should be about a page long, and you can use large fonts to help pad it out.

At the end of your article write "CLICK HERE FOR INSTANT ACCESS!" in a large font and hyperlink it to your affiliate/hop link that you saved earlier. You can hyperlink in Microsoft Word by highlighting the phrase that you wish to hyperlink, right-clicking it and entering your URL. If you're unable to hyperlink your affiliate link then simply paste it at the bottom underneath "CLICK HERE FOR INSTANT ACCESS!"

Is Diabetes Destroyed Really Worth The Time And Money?

Posted by Surya Kumar on November 15, 2014 at 12:32am

What is Diabetes Destroyed Review by Ricky Everett All about? Is Diabetes Destroyed Scam? You Must Read this honest Diabetes Destroyed Review...

Product Description:

If you're reading this, either you or someone close to you has diabetes and you're looking for a solution that may alleviate the symptoms or even cure the diabetes. There are several online guides in the market that make bold claims of being able to reverse or even cure the diabetes.

These claims are often met with skepticism and it all looks like a scam. In most cases, it is a scam. The Diabetes Destroyed, however is NOT a scam. Created by Ricky Everett, this guide will show diabetes patients that prevention is better than cure. It shows specific methods to keep blood glucose levels under control.

Arrest the causes and that's half the battle won. The hard, unfortunate truth is that the money is in the treatment and not the cure. Doctors, hospitals and big pharma companies would rather keep treating your condition than curing you immediately which will dry up their cash cow... You!

You may consume medications prescribed by doctors and see results. However, you're merely treating the symptoms and not the cause. The problem will always be there. The Diabetes Destroyed will teach you to live life in a way that treats the problem holistically. With a few changes in your diet and correcting some aspects of your life, you will slowly discover that you do not need medication anymore. You would have solved the problem from within.

The Good Points:

The Diabetes Destroyed is very affordable and it's a one-time investment. Compared to normal medication which you will have to keep paying for, this is much cheaper over the long run.

There is a 100 percent money back guarantee. That makes this program risk free. It also proves that Ricky Everett believes in his program and is not expecting any dissatisfied customers. Totally risk-free.

The Diabetes Destroyed is very informative and at the same time practical. It will clear up any misconceptions you may have about diabetes. At the same time, this is not just theory. It is practical information that is meant to be applied. Put the program to work and it will work wonders for you.

After purchasing the Diabetes Destroyed, you also have access to online support for any doubts, questions or clarifications that you may need. You're not left stranded on your own. This over and above service is priceless.

The product is easy to understand and apply. You can rest assured that you do not need to be an MD to understand this guide. It was written for the layman and it is a breeze to read through.

The Bad Points:

This is an online product. You will need a computer and an internet connection to purchase it and read it.

The program must be consistently followed. This is true with any holistic program. Similar to losing weight, your efforts will need to be constant and consistent till you have cured yourself. You will need discipline and determination to stick to the plan. If you do it, the rewards are sweet. A life without constant worry about your diabetes.

This is not a small 5 page guide you can complete in 30 minutes. It is comprehensive and for good reason. It teaches you everything you need to know to understand the disease and get control of it and get rid of it. It will take you some time to get through the course but it is well worth your time.

Should You Get It?

Definitely. If you have diabetes, it's always at the back of your mind. You have to constantly worry about your blood sugar levels, the food you eat, etc.

Enough is enough. The Diabetes Destroyed has helped thousands of people around the world get the upper hand on diabetes.

It's time for you to join them and do the same.

Once you successfully publish your first post, you just need to copy and save the link of the post.

Something like this: <http://your-site-name.ning.com/blog/is-diabetes-destroyed-really-worth-the-time>

The above link we need it for the seo process.

Alright now you already learned how to build a website from A-Z. You know how to pick a domain name and where to host the site and how to create a killer content for your website etc.

Now here comes the fun part of the course.

Seeing your site ranking on the first place on Google for a product on the launch day is an awesome feeling.

This is your main target. You want your website on the front page of Google. Obviously the higher the Google rank, the more sales you'll get.

This is only achievable with some very important rules which I am going to teach you now...

On to the final step... generating traffic.

STEP 5 – GENERATING TRAFFIC

So now it's possible for people to view our review post and buy our promoted product, but how do they find the post/site in the first place?

We need to build some traffic towards our post.

By simply submitting your post link to directories, users will be able to find them naturally through search, however to supercharge this process we're going to make them rank higher and allow more people to find them easier with traffic generation.

There are some very straightforward ways to get additional traffic towards your post, some take a little more effort than others, but all of them bring in more people to look at your post/website.

One of the key concepts here is that we are going to create backlinks to your post. This simply means creating links from other websites on the internet to your post which will allow them to rank higher in search engines as well as letting people find them through natural search methods.

1) PINGOMATIC

Before we start building backlinks it's very important that your website is first indexed by search engines. Being indexed means that search engines such as Google know that your website (or post in this case) exist.

You should never build backlinks to your review post or website before it is indexed or you may get sandboxed by Google, taking weeks to show up in results.

Using a service like Pingomatic will send web crawlers from Google and other search engines to your website to let them know that your website (or post) is live and has new content. If you don't use Pingomatic then the web crawlers have to find your website manually which can take much longer.

Even though Pingomatic is designed for blogs, it can be utilized for all types of web content, including our post.

Go to Pingomatic.com and under "Blog Home Page" put the link to your post.

Under "Blog Name" put the human readable title of your post, which should contain some keywords as well.

Hit "Send Pings" and you're done.

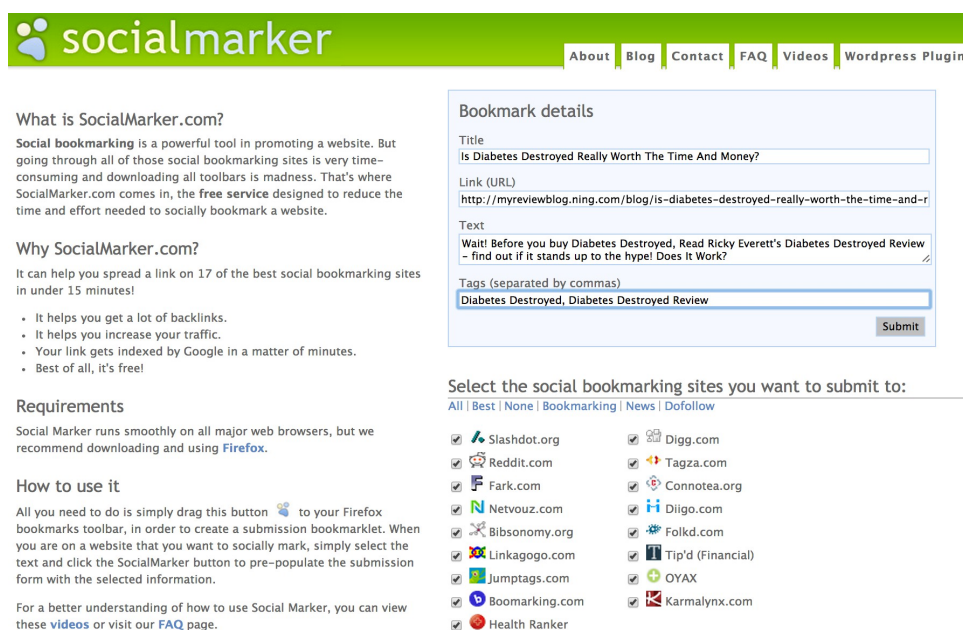

The screenshot shows the Ping-O-Matic website interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with 'Home', 'Stats', and 'Blog' links. Below this, a section titled 'PINGING SEARCH ENGINES' explains the service: 'Ping-O-Matic is a service to update different search engines that your blog has updated.' and includes a link to 'Learn more...'. The main content area is titled 'Blog Details' and contains three input fields: 'Blog Name' with the text 'Is Diabetes Destroyed Really Worth The Time And Mone', 'Blog Home Page' with a URL ending in '.ning.com/blog/is-diabetes-destroy', and 'RSS URL (optional):' with the text 'http://'. Below this is a section titled 'Services to Ping' which is divided into 'Common Services (Uncheck all)' and 'Specialized Services'. The 'Common Services' section lists 12 services, all of which are checked: Weblogs.com, NewsGator, Blogdigger, Topic Exchange, SkyGrid, Blo.gs, My Yahoo!, Weblogalot, Google Blog Search, Feed Burner, PubSub.com, News Is Free, Spinn3r, Collecta, and Superfeedr. The 'Specialized Services' section lists 4 services, all of which are unchecked: Audio.Weblogs, RubHub, A2B GeoLocation, and BlogShares. At the bottom of the form is a large button labeled 'Send Pings »'.

Once you've sent a ping, web crawlers will eventually get around to indexing your post. This process can take anywhere from a few minutes to a matter of hours. You can check that your site has been indexed by typing the URL in a search engine such as Google. If it appears, congratulations, you're indexed! Once your document has been indexed, the next step is to build some backlinks.

The following sections describe great ways to build backlinks and generate traffic towards your post.

2) SOCIAL MARKER

Go to socialmarker.com and submit the link to your post. Fill in the bookmark details using the same information you've collected throughout this whole process and manually submit your site to as many social bookmarking sites as you can. It's slow at first, and takes a little effort, but gets quicker the more you do it.

The screenshot shows the SocialMarker.com website. The header is green with the 'socialmarker' logo and navigation links: About, Blog, Contact, FAQ, Videos, and Wordpress Plugin. The main content area is divided into two columns. The left column contains text about SocialMarker.com, including 'What is SocialMarker.com?', 'Why SocialMarker.com?', 'Requirements', and 'How to use it'. The right column features a 'Bookmark details' form with fields for Title, Link (URL), Text, and Tags, followed by a 'Submit' button. Below the form is a section titled 'Select the social bookmarking sites you want to submit to:' with a list of 17 sites, each with a checkbox and a 'Dofollow' link.

3) FACEBOOK MARKETING

Join some Facebook groups dedicated to your particular niche. Post interesting discussion questions or information along with the link to your post link.

For example, for the Diabetes niche you could join a Diabetes group and post: "I found a really good way to gain experience points quickly from this guide, what do you guys think?" followed by the link to your post.

The key with the marketing is that you want to add actual value to whatever you're posting. Don't be another spammer on the Internet! Not only is it ineffective but your posts will just get removed very quickly.

4) Article Marketing

A lot of my daily work has to do with article marketing. There are a few big sites which you really don't want to miss.

Just add one or two articles for every product you want to promote to these article sites. You will get visitors through these articles, as well as high valued backlinks.

Here are the main free article directories:

<http://www.articledashboard.com/>

<http://www.articlesnatch.com/>

<http://www.articlesbase.com/>

<http://www.articlecity.com/>

<http://goarticles.com/>

<http://www.articlebiz.com/>

<http://www.articletrader.com/>

However I know how annoying it can be to write articles. See if you have several websites it can be a pain to submit dozens of articles to each site separately.

This is why I HIGHLY recommend you to try the Article Marketing Robot.

Currently this tool comes with a list of over 6,000 article directories. It is amazing how fast it submits to ALL the directories.

You will get 6,000 HIGH Quality backlinks to your website in no time!

5) Natural Backlinks

I already mentioned social networks in the last chapter.

Believe me these networks are traffic goldmines and you absolutely have to use them!

You need to give your visitors the chance to share your content with their friends.

Place a small Facebook “like” button at the end of every post. If the visitor likes your content he will share the post with his friends.

Create a twitter profile and put a “follow me” button on the end of every post.

If your content is good enough, people want to hear more from you and follow you.

Often people even link back to your article or piece of content from their own websites.

All in all you don't have to do additional work in order to get backlinks. Just post content which people really like to read and they'll be happy to share it with other!

CONCLUSION AND ACTION PLAN

Well done! If you've followed the 5-steps giving above then you've already mastered the system. The best thing about this system is that it's scalable. If you really want to super charge your profits you can repeat the steps given in this book for many different niches, products, keywords, posts etc. The combinations are endless. It's just a matter of how much time you're willing to put into sticking to one system and making it work.

What follows is an action plan summarizing the 5 steps so that you can follow it and execute the method quickly. If you repeat the action plan every day you'll easily build up a huge network of affiliate links which will earn you commissions in your sleep!

ACTION PLAN

1. Select a product on Clickbank with 20-50 Gravity in a Popular niche.
2. Find some keywords using the sales page
3. Create a Review using information from their sales page
4. Publish your post to your ning website
5. Generate traffic using your preferred method(s)
